FULL I I 06.20.2008
MARK I WINDRACER

WindRacer was built to settle a gentleman's bet among fellow sailors concerning the ability of a vehicle to extract power by heading directly into the wind. Several experienced captains said it was impossible since it was assumed that the mechanical thrust would be less than the drag on any wind catching structure. WindRacer proved that it is indeed possible to move briskly into the wind, accelerating quickly to its maximum speed. Not only that, it was fun watching peoples jaws drop when they see something seemingly working counter to their intuition.
